Description

Three tiered sculptural side table with marble, blue stained ash and brass table surfaces.

A lesson in interior geometry, the Palette Side table takes inspiration from the shape of a painter's palette.

Designed by Spanish artist Jaime Hayon, this unique contemporary table creates a remarkable kinetic sculpture where each table surface converges together in a striking installation.

Explaining his design philosophy, Hayon comments: "Tables are where people exchange ideas, express emotions and connect with each other.

As a multi-purpose object, why not design a multi-tiered table where different sizes, shapes, colours and materials converge together?"

Giving a mobile appearance yet completely static, this three-tiered table offers a unique composition of surfaces:

1x red Rosso Levanto marble oval shaped top level surface
1x painter's palette shaped blue stained ash side table surface
1x laser cut satin polished brass circular low level surface

Offering the perfect remedy to our multi-tasking lives, the design is complete with a black powder-coated metal base.

Aesthetic Note: Due to the natural materials used, each table is distinctively unique every time.
